Roco: Nothing wrong with religious support

By TJ Margulies

THEIR'S nothing wrong with the endorsement of presidential candidates by religious leaders, according to former Sen. Raul Roco and Tarlac Rep. Herminio Aquino of the Alyansa ng Pag-Asa.

Roco, who is seeking the presidency, said yesterday that as long as a religious leader is a Filipino citizen, he can support any candidate.

"As a lawyer, I don't see why a religious leader cannot endorse," said Roco. "If you're a citizen, you're entitled to choose and influence others."

Aquino, Roco's running mate, agreed with him. "Anybody can endorse," he said.

Roco said that he did not find questionable the traditional practice by religious leaders to vote as a bloc.

"Almost all groups vote by bloc, in Alyansa, we hope to vote by bloc. Alyansa Demokratika votes by bloc. All groups organize so that they will vote as one," he told reporters in an interview in Tatalon, a slum village in Quezon City.

Roco was reacting to a petition filed by Sen. Mike Velarde of the influential El Shaddai with the Supreme Court seeking to reverse a Manila regional trial court ruling that declared unconstitutional the endorsement of candidates by religious leaders.

Manila Judge Concepcion Alarcon-Vergara ruled in June last year that the head of a religious organization, who "influences or threatens to punish" members, could be held liable for coercion for violating a citizen's right to vote freely.

Roco had admitted writing to the leadership of the powerful religious group Iglesia ni Cristo (INC) to relay his intention of running for president, and that he had received a "beautiful reply." He, however, declined to divulge it.

Presidential candidates often seek the endorsement of the INC leadership, whose members vote as a bloc during elections. The group, headed by Minister Efraim Manalo, commands two to four million votes, according to reports.

Experience to carry me through—FPJ

By Christine O. Arevalo

MANILA CITY—He may not have a professional's pedigree, but his life experiences are enough to carry him through the difficult task of handling the country's state of affairs.

"Life is in itself an experience, and I think I have been a survivor," opposition candidate Fernando Poe Jr. told reporters here, reacting to President Macapagal-Arroyo's statement to businessmen the other day that they had two options in the May elections—to go for someone with experience or for someone without any platform of government.

The President could not resist spending her familiar line extolling the achievements of her administration, in contrast to "an untented candidate with no experience (Poe)," after acknowledging an apology from comedian Dolphy.

At the Koolayon ng Nagkakaisang Pilipino rally in Manila last weekend for party standard-bearer Poe, his good friend, Dolphy had called the President "dumb" for playing innocent in the alleged scrapping of his television show at the Lupton-owned ABS-CBN television network.

The President accepted Dolphy's apology but in a pre-birthday celebration dinner hosted by Gina de Venecia, wife of Speaker Jose De Venecia, she struck back by saying that the apology "did not remove the fact that the opposition has no platform of government, including a platform for the movie industry."

Asked to comment on the remark, Poe told reporters he had a platform for his friends in show business, but he did not give any details.

However, he said he hoped Dolphy's apology put an end to the controversy.

Koolayon ng Nagkakaisang Pilipino territorial candidates Juan Ponce Enrile, Boots Anson-Roa and Francisco Marcos lauded Dolphy for being a gentleman by offering his apologies to the President.

Still a nuisance

By Martin R. Murillo

NO luck the second time around.

Yesterday, the Commission on Elections denied a plea filed by businessman Eddie Gil to reconsider his disqualification from the presidential race, saying that he was unable to raise substantial issues to warrant a reversal of a previous decision declaring him a "nuisance candidate."

In a decision issued by the commission en banc, the Comelec affirmed a ruling of its second division and denied Gil's motion for reconsideration filed on March 22.

The decision was signed by the seven commissioners, but one of their colleagues, Virgilio (Marillano), did not participate in the deliberations.

The case against Gil was filed by supporters of presidential candidate Sen. Eddie Villamor who feared that if Gil was allowed to run, votes for him might be declared "starry votes" and not counted in his favor.

PREX convention

4 US contractors suffer grisly deaths in Iraq town

WASHINGTON—Washington vowed to pay the ransom to Iraq on Wednesday after four US contractors were killed and dragged through the streets in an incident that unfolded a grisly 1990 at least one US soldier in Baghdad.

The Iraq, according to officials in Baghdad, through the Iraqi town of Falluja, visited for a prison recovery called Blackwater USA, Inc. to know US also spent considerable time to provide security services around the world.

A crowd of people at Black vehicles arrived, pulled down the the burning wreckage and dragged the charred and, crushed bodies through the doors of the buses, a crowd of witnesses in the US-led occupation of Iraq was at Baghdad.

Television footage of a soldier looking in a vehicle showed Americans over the US side of the road and was a scene in the streets in and US soldiers were the victims.

It was a tragedy, officials said, that the US soldiers were killed and the bodies were dragged through the streets.

The White House said the attack, and a possible attempt to attack the US soldiers was killed for a possible death was that a soldier was at Baghdad would not show the "United States" and would be a possible attempt to kill following the US has the the capital and leader Saddam Hussein.

There are "no US soldiers" in power when we try to power democracy from war, said White House spokeswoman Scott McClellan, saying that the United States would not be a US soldier to "lead over" and to be an unqualified American government.

"We want the loss of the soldiers to be an important effort to bring order to Iraq and to provide the Iraqi people justice and justice," said the US soldiers who were killed.

The state department said the US soldiers killed in Falluja were "US soldiers, but the White House said the soldiers were not US soldiers.

Blackwater Security Consulting, a part of Blackwater USA, based a statement saying that the US was its parent but saying the "United States" of the soldiers are not US soldiers.

The March, Florida Coastline Fire's FBI also said the US was a black, red and yellow the people and others in a crowd gear pointing weapons, says it said was "involved in shooting with high-kill, automatic and sniper weapons."

The site which witnesses a scene as a photograph, has a world photograph of what it called "the most comprehensive picture of the US military facility in the United States" and "a scene of providing 'technology and medical services' across the world." Reuters

DepEd lifts campaign ban on campuses

MANILA, April 1 (UPI)—The Department of Education (DepEd) has lifted its long-standing ban on political campaigns on school campuses, allowing candidates for local and national offices to openly solicit votes from students.

DepEd Secretary Francisco Duque III said the decision was made after a long and arduous process, taking into account the needs of the youth and the realities of the political system.

He said the new policy would allow candidates to hold rallies, distribute campaign materials, and engage in other forms of public expression on school grounds.

However, DepEd officials stressed that the lifting of the ban does not mean that schools are endorsing any particular candidate or party. They emphasized that the decision was aimed at providing a fair and open environment for students to exercise their right to choose their representatives.

The new policy also allows for the formation of student organizations and clubs that can support candidates, provided they do not engage in any form of discrimination or harassment.

DepEd officials said the decision was a response to the growing demand for greater participation of the youth in the political process. They noted that many students felt that the ban was outdated and did not reflect the current realities of Philippine society.

The new policy is expected to have a significant impact on the upcoming local and national elections, as it allows candidates to reach out to a large and influential segment of the population.

Maynilad exec says new firm can handle debts

MANILA, April 1 (UPI)—A top executive of Maynilad Water Services Inc. said the company's new subsidiary, Maynilad Water Services (MWS), is capable of handling the company's massive debt obligations.

The executive, who spoke at a press conference, said that MWS has a strong financial base and is well-equipped to manage the company's debt. He noted that MWS has a proven track record of successfully managing large-scale infrastructure projects and has a strong relationship with the government and the private sector.

He also said that MWS is committed to providing high-quality water services to the people of Manila and is confident that it can meet all of the company's obligations.

2 more disqualification cases filed against GMA

MANILA, April 1 (UPI)—Two more cases of disqualification have been filed against the GMA network, bringing the total number of cases to four. The cases were filed by the Commission on Elections (COMELEC) and the Office of the Ombudsman.

The first case was filed by COMELEC, alleging that GMA had violated the rules on election coverage by giving preferential treatment to certain candidates. The second case was filed by the Office of the Ombudsman, alleging that GMA had engaged in a scheme to defraud the government by overcharging for its services.

GMA officials have denied both allegations and said that the network is committed to providing fair and unbiased coverage of the election process. They also said that they are confident that they can resolve the cases through the legal system.

The cases are part of a larger investigation into the operations of GMA and its relationship with the government. The investigation is being led by the Office of the Ombudsman and the Department of Justice.

The cases are expected to have a significant impact on the election process, as they could lead to the disqualification of GMA as a media outlet. This would mean that GMA would no longer be able to provide coverage of the election process, which would be a major setback for the network.

Energy chief warns of power rate hikes after polls

MANILA, April 1 (UPI)—The Energy Secretary warned that power rates could increase significantly after the upcoming elections, due to the expected increase in demand for electricity.

The secretary said that the government is currently facing a shortage of power, and that this shortage is likely to worsen after the elections. He noted that many new projects are expected to be completed after the elections, which will increase the demand for electricity.

He also said that the government is currently negotiating with private power companies to increase their capacity, but that these negotiations are still in progress. He warned that if the negotiations fail, the government will have to raise power rates to cover the increased costs.

The secretary said that the government is committed to providing affordable and reliable power to the people, but that it is also committed to ensuring that the power sector is financially viable. He said that the government will take all necessary steps to ensure that power rates are kept as low as possible, while still covering the costs of production.

Gas price hike seen this month

By James M. Smith

Oil prices are expected to rise sharply this month, and a corresponding increase in the price of gasoline is likely to be seen by consumers.

The price of oil has risen steadily since the beginning of the year, and is now at a level that is 10 percent higher than it was at the start of 1978.

Analysts expect that the price of oil will continue to rise through the end of the year, and that this will lead to a similar increase in the price of gasoline.

The price of gasoline has already risen by about 5 percent since the beginning of the year, and is now at a level that is 15 percent higher than it was at the start of 1978.

Consumers are expected to see a further increase in the price of gasoline this month, and this will likely lead to a similar increase in the price of other goods and services.

The price of gasoline is expected to rise by about 10 percent this month, and this will likely lead to a similar increase in the price of other goods and services.

SAYS AGAINST THE LAW

DOF bucks BIR move to ban sale of TCCs

By Michelle R. Brown

The Department of Finance (DOF) has rejected a proposal by the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) to ban the sale of Treasury Certificate of Deposit (TCC) units, a move that would have effectively ended the sale of these units to the public.

The BIR had proposed the ban as part of a broader effort to streamline the government's financial operations and reduce the risk of fraud. However, the DOF, which is responsible for managing the government's finances, argued that the sale of TCCs is a vital source of revenue for the government and that a ban would be detrimental to the economy.

S&P: No economic policy reversals after May polls

By Peter J. Gosselin

Standard & Poor's (S&P) has indicated that it does not expect any major economic policy reversals following the May elections. The rating agency's analysts believe that the current economic policies will remain in place, which could lead to a more stable economic environment.

The S&P analysts noted that the government's economic policies have been consistent and that there is no indication of a change in direction. They also pointed out that the government's fiscal policies are sound and that the economy is on a steady growth path.

Et puts coconut oil in GSP list

By Chennakrishna Reddy

The Ministry of Commerce has added coconut oil to the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) list, which allows for duty-free import of certain goods from developing countries. This move is expected to boost the export of coconut oil from India and other countries on the list.

The Ministry of Commerce also announced that it will be reviewing the GSP list regularly to ensure that it remains up-to-date and effective. The addition of coconut oil is seen as a positive step towards promoting trade and economic growth.

Bat meets March revenue target

The Ministry of Finance (DOF) has announced that the government has met its March revenue target. This is a significant achievement, especially given the challenges faced by the government in the current economic environment.

The DOF officials expressed their satisfaction with the government's performance in meeting the revenue target. They also noted that the government will continue to work hard to ensure that it meets its financial obligations and maintains a strong economic position.

By Peter J. Gosselin

The government's revenue performance in March was a testament to the effectiveness of its economic policies and the resilience of the economy. The DOF will continue to monitor the revenue situation closely and will take appropriate measures to ensure that the government remains on track to meet its financial goals.

The revenue target was set at a challenging level, but the government managed to exceed it, which is a positive sign for the economy. The DOF will be looking at the revenue trends in the coming months to see if the government can maintain this level of performance.

The revenue target was a key part of the government's budgetary plan, and meeting it is a crucial step towards achieving the government's economic objectives. The DOF will be working closely with other government departments to ensure that the revenue target is met consistently in the future.

Indoor garden minus the flora and fauna

Ivy Almario makes over her own home in record time with a little help from her professional friends

Text by Alan Y. Vargas

It pays to develop good relations with your partners. During critical time, they won't think twice about going the extra mile to help you despite their busy schedules.

Interior designer Ivy Almario found this out when she used a great idea to decorate her sleek two-story Makati flat, which she occupied after selling a condo unit at the BDO Tower late last year.

She wanted an indoor garden sans the plants, clumping pots and fluttering butterflies. For that, she had to come up with new furniture and several pieces to match the lively and green-and-white color palette of her preferred theme.

And why the rush?

The Sydney-based visitor, Cecile Mariani, was moving home for the holidays, and the Almario needed a custom flat place to hold a reunion.

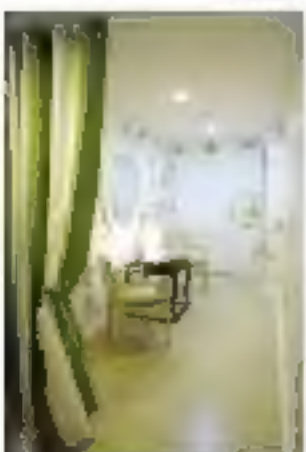

It was no joke to Ivy had to make sure the house still looked the same as when she left.

That responsibility fell on Ivy as she enlisted the help of her other "family"—her professional partners—to finish the job for her Christmas. The couple's love theme is more than a word.

"Everybody knows that Christmas is a big thing in the Philippines," she explains. "Aside from buying gifts and planning the holiday events, it's also a time when families spend up their homes. That's why it seemed like our services usually hit the real bottom line for me."

So while Ivy attended to her clients, she asked Mariani to take care of another Almario's in-house designs, to manage her house's renovation.

These new approaches have a lot to recommend them, but they cannot be applied without some care. In the case of the new approaches, the first thing to do is to make sure that the data are not too noisy. If the data are too noisy, the new approaches will not work. If the data are too noisy, the new approaches will not work.

It has only one of those things you do through the internet to "support" a business. The business that is doing the good deed has to do the work. You wouldn't have to pay it. It's a good thing you can't do that. It's a good thing you can't do that. It's a good thing you can't do that.

It is a hard enough job, and they will find a way to get more people involved. But it is not enough to have a strong desire to do it. You need a strong desire to do it, and a strong desire to do it, and a strong desire to do it.

It took five days to make our last journey, and then I thought to push for five more. In December 1962, the business was closed, and my studies resumed. In Queens, the night is really so beautiful because the commercial lights in Manhattan make the stars so much brighter than in the country. That's why I like to go to the city.

During the, of course, a journey's worth of flying, you talk like you're in the air, and you realize it's probably the most realistic way to fly. And, of course, you realize it's probably the most realistic way to fly. And, of course, you realize it's probably the most realistic way to fly.
